

EMOTIONAL REGULATION: WORKSHOP

INSPIRE Autism Team are hosting another Autism Training opportunity. This training is within the Universal Offer/Ordinarily Available Framework for staff in Hammersmith & Fulham Early Years settings who work with autistic children to develop a variety of tools and strategies to support self regulation.

Introduction to Emotional Regulation in your Early Years provision

It's critically important for children to learn how to recognise their emotions but, sometimes it's difficult for adults to see that the child is struggling with this skill.

The first step is supporting a child to understand different emotion states and supporting them with strategies that help them to calm. This is the start towards their success as we know that children learn best when they are calm and well regulated.

You'll achieve this through working with a child, talking about emotions and feelings frequently and helping them to identify them.

Developing self-regulation, like many elements of development and learning, is not something children do by themselves.

So, join one of our workshops to explore and understand how you can support children's emotional regulation in the Early Years.
