

Following on from the success of INSPIRE ASK US! sessions, our colleagues in settings/schools feedback highlights that they would like similar opportunities to address/explore specific Teaching & Learning topics to support SEND in the classroom as well as individual staff concerns and questions.

Whilst ultimately responsible and accountable for the progress of these children, some mainstream teachers worry that they are not effectively supporting SEN in the classroom
(Warnes et al., 2021)

A TaLK! session is a confidential advice and support surgery

Teaching & Learning is the Key ..... Knowledge. Empowers You

“Good teaching for SEND is good teaching for all children”

By effectively supporting SEND in the classroom through tailoring your learning environment and teaching practice to best meet needs, you can help to ensure that barriers to learning are reduced.

...although there is no 'one size fits all' to support pupils with SEND, you can provide support to pupils with SEND in many varied ways, including: creating a positive and inclusive learning environment; consistently applying good general practice, providing high quality teaching for all; getting to know the personal needs of the individual learner; communicating honestly, openly, and regularly; carefully planning effective SEND interventions, accommodations and scaffolds; and continually evaluating your provision..... INSPIRE can help.
